

University of Colorado
Department of Mathematics
Problem of the Month
December 2012-January 2013

A circular table has radius 25. Suppose I place 144 coins of radius 1 on the table. Show that, however these coins are arranged, I can add yet another coin so that it lies entirely within the border of the table and does not overlap any of the other coins.