

University of Colorado
Department of Mathematics
Problem of the Month
November 2011

You are given finitely many disjoint closed disks in the unit square. Explain why it is possible to partition the square into convex polygons in such a way that every polygon contains exactly one disk.

Example:

